This website is dedicated to the scorpion especially scorpions of different parts of Iran based on scorpion studies by scientists and others seeking information about these interesting arachnids. The goal of this site is to give as much information about scorpion's biology, echomorphotypes taxonomy, systematic, scorpionism, and scorpion venom as possible. The information in this site is as far as possible based on scientific data, but the presentation has a popular science profile to make it available to all types of information seekers. I hope you will enjoy the site.
